

Byrne Wallace

A Chara,

I am a third year undergraduate Law and Irish student in University College Cork interested in undertaking a legal internship in your establishment in Dublin next summer.

If given an opportunity to work with you, I would engage my existing skill set and immerse myself in the work. Through my studies and previous experience, I have a keen interest in a variety of areas of law such as EU law and wish to expand my knowledge further. Through my course I have gained valuable experience in legal writing and analytical thinking, and I have furthered my research skills through my role with the Irish Legal Information Initiative. This role has also given me insight into areas of law outside of my modules such as Administrative and Environmental law. I have seen these areas in your practice and hope to learn more about it.

Through my committees and my past work experiences I have shown that I am a flexible worker utilizing a wide range of skills such as working with the public, in a team, and independently, and have succeeded in reaching deadlines under strict time constraints. These are the qualities that will make me a good fit for Byrne Wallace.

Molly McCloskey