To the Hiring Manager of Byrne Wallace,

I am writing to express my keen interest in the internship at Byrne Wallace. As an upcoming graduate with an LLB in Law and Political Sciences from TCD, I am particularly drawn to Byrne Wallace's reputation for professional development, collaboration, and its full range of legal services. Byrne Wallace's strong background in sectors such as employment and commercial law resonate deeply with my career interests. I am impressed by the firm's commitment to delivering strategic counsel and innovative solutions to its clients. Additionally, I value the exposure and flexibility that a full-service law firm like Byrne Wallace provides.

My academic background has equipped me with strong research, writing, and analytical skills, which I am eager to apply and enhance within Byrne Wallace's supportive and collaborative environment. I am excited about the opportunity to learn from experienced professionals and contribute to the firm's success. I've been independently pursuing a number of objectives throughout my academic career, for instance getting into one of the law school's very limited erasmus opportunities and earning a 1:1 while abroad. I also enjoy independent research and analysis, as I had an opportunity to do with my correspondence with OWP. This extends to my personal life where I enjoy tackling challenges simply because they scare me, like training for a month to fight in an amateur boxing match back in Singapore.

In general, I enjoy tackling new situations and difficult problems, as well as trying to integrate new rules into my evolving skillset. I particularly appreciate teamwork and delegation as a key component of any project. Working with MLRC was an experience that encouraged me to perform to the best of my ability: the cases we tackled were so desperate and often urgent that everyone on the team felt a pressing need to communicate efficiently and delegate rapidly to meet people's needs as case load increased dramatically. Similarly, in my old hotel job I'd have to manage over a hundred customers at once with my manager, rapidly responding in tandem to erupting problems. I think Byrne Wallace may provide the type of environment conducive to expanding my skills of collaboration in this manner.

Thank you for considering my application. I am eager to further discuss how my qualifications align with Byrne Wallace's values and needs. I look forward to the possibility of contributing to the esteemed team at Byrne Wallace.

Warm regards,
Roman
