Work experience

June 2016- July 2016, CRH Plc, Regulatory, Compliance and Ethics Intern.

- At CRH I was tasked with researching statutory acts to help ensure that the company in is in compliance with national and international standards of law.
- A big part of my role also consisted of drafting company policies.
- I was also afforded the opportunity to work with competition law matters. Here I had to conduct research into the area of competition law and determine our company's position against the current rules and regulations in place nationally and internationally.

June 2015- May 2016, DCU, Student Ambassador

- This role involved attending networking events, assisting newcomers settle into DCU and welcoming prospective students to DCU.
- I had to help in marketing the college through social media, which involved blogging about student life and campus events.
- My role as DCU ambassador affords me with the opportunity to work and communicate with senior faculty members and alumni, in addition to networking with sponsors (and prospective sponsors) of the college.

April 2015- June 2015, Brophy Solicitors, Legal Assistant

- I was responsible for completing legal research in the area of immigration law. This involved becoming familiar with the relevant legal research tools and drafting advice based on my findings, with the facts of the clients' case in mind.
- An integral part of my job was meeting deadlines, which is greatly important, particularly when working as part of a team.

Interests

- I enjoy participating in voluntary activities that involves helping the community I am in. I used to have a huge role in the DCU Free Legal Advice Centre (FLAC), where I was afforded the opportunity to give free legal advice to members of the local community. Through this I was able to build on my client communications skills and my understanding of areas in law such as contract and employment law.
 - Being bilingual has helped me develop an interest in learning new languages. Already I can speak four languages at different levels of fluency (Albanian- native, English- native, German- beginner, Irish- beginner). I do plan on developing on my current language skills and possibly learning another new language in the near future.
 - Languages links in with the fact I like to travel. I have visited many great European cities over the past couple of years and intend on visiting more when presented with the opportunity.
 - I enjoy playing football, captaining my local team, Swords Manor FC, between the years of 2010-2012. Now my involvement in football is based on playing evening indoor football with some of my close friends.
