To whom it may concern,

Byrne Wallace is a revered and distinguished law firm, which strives to challenge the status quo, valuing team-work, collaboration and a commitment to excellence. These are qualities which I admire and respect, and endeavour to apply in my daily life. I am a diligent and keen learner, punctual and adapt well to difficult situations. My communication skills and abilities as a team worker are excellent, which have come to the fore in my volunteer work at the World Transplant Games, and my experience as a keynote speaker at “Master Class in Liver Disease” in Chennai, India in January of this year. I would like the opportunity to gain more confidence and hone my legal acumen. These qualities can only be improved through practical experience, and I believe the Byrne Wallace Trainee Programme provides the perfect environment to achieve this.

The testimonials of employees point to a huge culture of learning and development within Byrne Wallace. As an undergraduate student, we see more of theory than of the practice of law and it would be wonderful to embark on my legal career in such a prestigious firm.

Hearing from employees at Byrne Wallace, there seems to be a very pleasant, friendly and highly professional atmosphere at the firm. I would like to be able to make new acquaintances in the field and develop a more in-depth understanding of life in a corporate law firm. I would like to gain a better picture of how working in law will synergistically influence my life, and the environment and ethos in Byrne Wallace is very conducive to that end.

Kind Regards,

Baebhen Schüttke.
