

As a prominent Irish corporate law firm Byrne Wallace immediately stands apart from other firms in this industry. However, it was Byrne Wallace's commitment to encourage and nurture the ambition of its future graduates that particularly enticed me to apply for the programme. I am a proactive and innovative student with strong commercial awareness as well as an entrepreneurial flair, evidenced by my involvement with both REA O'Connor Murphy and Bluebird Care. I strive to take full advantage of every opportunity to further learn and develop key skills and attributes that in turn will achieve results for clients. I recognise the mutual ambition in Byrne Wallace for graduates to take control of their own progression by offering generous support enabling mastering of corporate law.

I am a third year student of Business and Law in UCD. My course is distinctive in that upon graduation in 2020, I will receive a double major in both business and law. The relationship between both faculties is very much complementary and through my studies I have developed the strong analytical, research and logical reasoning skills necessary for entering the legal world.

I have developed strong interpersonal and communication skills through my experience in the hospitality sector. This combined with my business experience in Bluebird and REA O'Connor Murphy and legal knowledge ensure that I am confident engaging with clients and forge lasting relationships which will be of benefit the overall firm.

I hope that my eagerness to join the Byrne Wallace intern Programme is evident throughout my application and that all relevant experience and skills are clearly portrayed in my CV. I look forward to any further questions you may have for me.

Best Regards,

Clodagh O'Connor.
