

ByrneWallace

My name is Daniel Arvidsson and I would like to apply for a trainee position. ByrneWallace is the law firm I would like to work for and there are several reasons why.

First of all, you are one of Ireland's largest law firms. That means that I will work on big profile domestic and international projects which suit me perfectly. I have extensive experience of working internationally and knowledge of other jurisdictions.

Secondly, ByrneWallace and your colleagues have made a good impression on me. People seem to enjoy going to work because they find their work challenging. That is the atmosphere and passion that I am looking for.

Thirdly, I think I will develop into a good solicitor working for ByrneWallace as you invest in training and sharing your knowledge. I strive to constantly learn new things and help others. In the future, I would like to take responsibility for the development of trainees and associates.

What can I contribute with? First of all, I have the ability to quickly learn new things. When I participated in the final of EY Young Tax Professional of the Year, I had six hours to do a legal investigation, prepare a presentation and answers to possible questions. My arguments had great success and I received good feedback from the judges saying I was structured and a good communicator.

Secondly, I have a passion for business law and how it can be utilised to help the client in his business. When I did my internship at another business law firm, I often faced situations where the law did not allow the client to act in a certain way. I then had to come up with a solution that was equally good, if not even better. I am really looking forward to advice clients and see them succeed in their business.

Thirdly, I work effectively in a team. In the International and European Tax Moot Court, I competed with students from Ireland, France and Finland. With a background in different legal systems, we were able to view the case from different angles and our ability to discuss a common solution was a key factor in us taking home the award for best memorandum on behalf of the defendant.

For all the above reasons, I sincerely believe that we would be a good fit and that ByrneWallace is the right place for me to continue my career as a lawyer (sv. "jurist"). I would see it as a huge opportunity to become part of your team.

Kind regards,
