To Whom It May Concern,

My name is Emily Reilly, and I am currently studying my final year of law in Dublin City University. Following the past few years of studying law at undergraduate level, I believe that I have gained the skills which are necessary in order to succeed in the legal world. I have a strong passion for learning and whilst law is an interesting subject of study, I believe that the way in which you learn the law is one that opens up ones ability to learn any subject with a completely different outlook compared to how one learns whilst in a school setting is the most interesting aspect of my course. I am a quick learner and due to the various modules and project work I have taken part in since beginning my degree, I have a new outlook on how to read and understand things, which I feel is an important skill to have in the world of law, as things may not always be as they seem.

I am interested in the graduate programme here, as it seems like it would be the perfect fit for my personality and work ability. I feel that I am a hard worker, with a keen interest in consumer service which I believe is an important trait to have whilst working with various clients, which I believe my previous managers would vouch for. I also enjoy working in a team whilst also being able to work independently.

Many thanks for taking the time to read my application.

Emily Reilly.
