

To whom it may concern,

I'm writing this letter to apply for a position with your firm as a trainee solicitor. I hold a bachelor's degree in Law Plus (LLB) and a master's in Financial Services (MSc), both from the University of Limerick. I have completed all of my FE1 exams.

Directly after completing my studies, I worked in financial publishing for two years. I left that position to study for my FE1s, and started working as a freelance writer to support myself financially. I have continued working as a writer since completing my exams in March of this year.

I hope my CV and application form can convince you that I would be a good fit for Byrne Wallace. If you need any more information from me, please feel free to reach out to me at any time via email or phone.

Thanks in advance for considering my application. I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind regards,
Francis Walshe.
