Dear Ms. Murray,

As a very enthusiastic Business, Economics and Social studies student, I am writing to express my enormous interest in obtaining a position as a legal intern within your firm. After conducting thorough research on all the legal firms in Ireland, I have come to the conclusion that Byrne Wallace LLP is the firm I'd like to work for.

Despite my long-standing desire and ambition to be a solicitor, I decided to pursue a business and politics undergraduate degree, as I felt it would provide me with a broader perspective on legal matters and I do believe this is the case. I have a specific interest in contract law although I enjoy learning about all business related legal matters.

The experience I have working in property and administration has convinced me that I am an ideal candidate for this internship as I have to pay extremely close attention to detail in the tasks I carry out. I have natural interpersonal skills that have been refined and developed in working with people as well as for clients. I work well on my own initiative and work very hard to complete tasks to an exceptional standard and I am constantly looking to improve on whatever projects I undertake. The quality approach your firm abides by is absolutely in line with my working values and ethics.

I have participated in organised debates from a young age helping me to think critically and research effectively. I enjoy receiving advice and I can take criticism well as striving for excellence is the only way appropriate to carry out work.

Thank you for your consideration and I would love the opportunity to meet for an interview so you can further evaluate my suitability for this role. I look forward to hearing from you.

Henry Carroll
