Dear Ms. Ciara Loftus,

I am applying for the Trainee Solicitor Programme. I am a Law and Business student in my final year in Trinity College Dublin. I am committed to pursuing a First Class grade in my degree. I intend on beginning my FE1s in October 2020.

My internships and work experiences thus far with solicitors and barristers has provided me with an insight into corporate law. Seeing clients advised regarding share subscriptions, license agreements, bankruptcy, insolvency, insurance, tax and property showed me how corporate law has a real and immediate impact on society and business. Witnessing and engaging in such meaningful work was exciting, motivating and satisfying. My studies, particularly the principles of company law, have further strengthened my resolve to pursue this career. I want to work with top tier clients on headline cases that are challenging and where the results have tangible impacts.

I think analytically, critically, and logically which is highlighted by my involvement in debating and the European Youth Parliament.

Contributing to the Trinity Entrepreneurial Society, the Student Management Fund and the Trinity Business Review allows me to improve my research skills and my understanding of the fundamental concepts of business and law and the ability to link them.

I am diligent, organised and show meticulous attention to detail. As a Swim Ireland, rugby and tetrathlon coach I have developed my verbal and written communication skills. Through volunteering with special needs students I have developed my emotional intelligence and leadership skills. My ability to work both independently and as part of a team is displayed through my involvement in sport, music and extensive volunteering. I have a keen interest in sport having competed internationally at modern pentathlon and tetrathlon.

The Trainee Solicitor Programme in ByrneWallace is attractive for a number of reasons. There are a range of career opportunities within the firm. ByrneWallace has a long standing reputation for providing premium training and exposure to clients, support and responsibility.

I am keen to secure a Training contract in the hope that it will provide me with the opportunity for further development and progression.

Yours faithfully,
Jack Savage.
