Dear Ms. Loftus

I am writing to apply for a role as a Trainee Solicitor in your firm Byrne Wallace. As noted in my enclosed CV, I am a Bachelor of law and a Master of law graduate with over 2 years of relevant legal experience.

Working in some of Ireland's largest firms has let little doubt of my desire to become a qualified solicitor. Whilst I am cognisant of the hard work and sheer dedication it takes to pursue such a career, I am equally determined to contribute to Byrne Wallace's market leading practise, success, rapid growth by expanding my network, fully utilising my access to industry leaders and aligning myself with the firm's ethos.

I have worked closely with high calibre solicitors where I have gained strong insights into the life of many Irish lawyers and to the exceptional level of attention to detail, focus and dedication required to succeed. Such a career requires exceptional client focus and communication, something I possess and continue to assimilate. As a trainee, I trust that I can apply myself accordingly and expect that I will get an appreciation into many proceedings whilst working with your industry leaders.

Working in Commercial Property has upskilled my attention to detail and to utilise criticism constructively. Therefore I can appreciate the value of a firm which deep roots and prides itself on providing a positive trainee programme to ensure that I receive an independent experience in a supportive, collegiate environment.

I have always demonstrated leadership, professionalism in all my endeavours and pride myself on the ability to establish and maintain strong client relationships. As an entrepreneur who solely owns a custom cakes business, I believe I have the vital clientele skills required when it comes to communicating and liaising with clients and the general public.

One of Byrne Wallace's ethos is inclusivity and diversity. Bred in a multicultural background has taught me the power of hard work and resilience so I credit a firm that allows such candidates to excel and become active members of the Law Society hence why I am confident in my application that I am the right candidate for this position.

I welcome the chance to discuss this opportunity at an interview with you. I can be reached at 0892047771 and jadebakare01@gmail.com.

Yours sincerely
Jade Bakare
