Dear sir/madam,

I am a twenty two year old law graduate from Dublin City University. I worked in ByrneWallace for July of this year in the Corporate Litigation department under partners such as Patrick McClean, associates such as Paul Fisher and with the trainees, in particular Alex Henderson. ByrneWallace has a stellar reputation and I found it to be appropriate over my time in the firm. Everyone from the partners to the trainees were welcoming and even threw me a short finishing party! I particularly enjoyed scoring a goal on debut for the football team! The work was also engaging where I was handed responsibility in my first week and expected to work hard when necessary which I enjoyed.

If you speak to those who I got to know over my month in the firm, you will find that they know I loved my time there and really believe I can work full time in such an environment. I was shown all aspects of the job and effectively treated as a trainee for the month in my department. This only encouraged me to apply for this position.

I wish to be considered for this years trainee programme. Having an intimate knowledge of the firm I would be delighted to work in such a cheerful and enthusiastic environment while also enjoying the complexities and intensity that comes with a competitive major law firm in Dublin. As my Curriculum Vitae states, I would categorise myself as a mature, positive and hardworking individual, who always strives to achieve the highest standard possible, at any given task and I think I could do this as a trainee in ByrneWallace. It is this sense of excellence that most attracts me to Byrne Wallace and I hope to be highly considered for interview.

Yours Faithfully,

Tom Anders
